Hints from the past:

The 4 keywords

You can still enjoy the story of Xenoblade Chronicles 3, even if you have never played the past title of the series before. There are elements linked from the previous two titles scattered throughout the game, so we will introduce four mysteries related from the past.

1. Masked Queens of the two nations

Enemy of the protagonists!?

The two Queens are the rulers of two nations: Keves, a nation that specializes in mechanical technology, and Agnus, a nation strong in ether technology. Both the Queen of Keves and the Queen of Agnus wear masks and attack the main characters, condemning them as enemies of the world.

The two nations are constantly fighting.

Melia? Nia?

Looking at the wings on their head and the shape of their ears, they look much alike Melia and Nia, who were allies in the past titles of the series...

Squid Ecology Research MEMO

Their official name is "Inkling" but is often referred to as "squid." In a world where the sea level has risen and humans became extinct, they seem to have moved their base of operations from the sea, where struggle for survival is severe, to the few remaining land areas and evolved in their own unique way.

Transforms into a humanoid form

They can alternate between two forms: squid and humanoid, at will. Although it is not apparent, it seems like they are mollusks, and don't have bones even in humanoid form.

Blasts ink

Ink goes to the weapon via the tank on their backs. They cannot splat ink while the tank is empty.

Stored in its body, is not squid ink, but colorful ink. They will use weapons in humanoid form, to splat ink.

Dives into ink

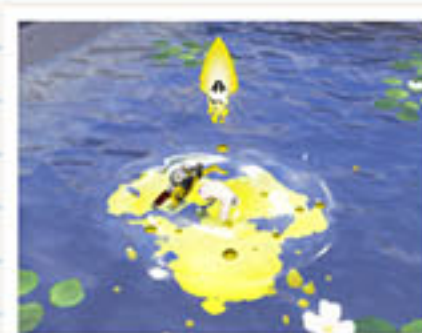

In squid form, they can dive into ink and swim through it in high-speed. It's faster than running in humanoid form.

They can also swim up walls, if submerged in ink.

Water is its weak point

Although they're squid, they don't like water. The ink in their body dissolves as they sink in.

There's Octolings too

Octopus or "Octolings" seem to share the same ecology as squid. Squid and octopus which had feuds in the past, are now living together.

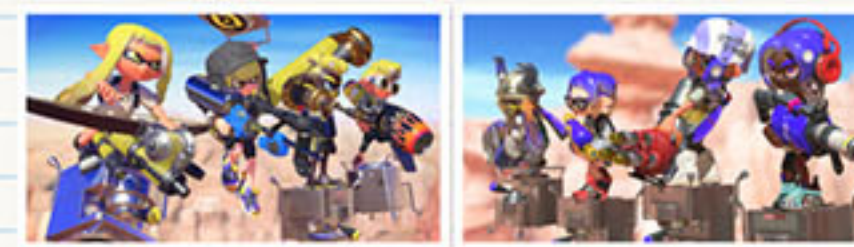

Want to stay fresh?

Young squid that want to be fresh is devoted to Turf War and fashion.

Turf War

A game to claim turf by painting ink. This game was born from the instinctive battle for its territory. That may be the reason why every squid is so passionate about Turf War. The general rules are as follows:

① 4 on 4 team battle

Battle in a team made with friends or a pick-up team.

② Splat ink for 3 minutes

Other than covering ground and walls, you can shoot ink to opponents and "splat" them. Even if you get splatted, you can respawn back at the starting point in a few seconds.

③ The team that covers most ground in their ink wins!

A mysterious cat will accurately judge the victor. (FYI this cat is said to be the only mammal in this squid world.)

Fashion

To be a fresh squid, they're particular about fashion too. Catching up on the trend is important, and so is showing originality. It's not just the looks – fashion gears also improve your abilities to compete in battle.

Battle with a variety of weapons

Different weapons have different ways to splat ink. Squid will head to battle with a weapon that suits them best.
